Fallon County is working with the local radio station and is broadcasting their meetings in an effort to keep the public informed.

No Zoom problems in Cascade County. And folks without a computer can access the Zoom meetings via a tollfree telephone number.

We are open to the public, appointment only at this time.

from Miles Hutton to everyone:

We tried Team for a department heads meeting and it was a disaster.

from Donna Giacometto to everyone:

Powder River is mostly closed to the public. The people can call ahead and enter via the okay from inside the courthouse from Stillwater County to everyone:

Stillwater County has the doors locked with Phone Numbers posted on the doors so residents can call the department they have business with. That department then lets them in helps them with their business and then takes them out. Limit one person per office at a time. This will continue for at least 2 more weeks

from rbrodehl to everyone:

Flathead is open but have a person at the door to make appointments, and contact internal staff.

from Miles Hutton to everyone:

good people will rise to the occasion let them do their job.

from rbrodehl to everyone:

Flathead stood up an incident command team in mid-march. The public health officer is the IC. Averaging 17 people on the team, OES is on the team. Two daily briefings. Most members now working remotely.

from Dennis Zander to everyone:

Dawson County has been closed to the public but operational. Our sessions and board meetings that have been held have been done by a 100 line conference call that is published and open to the public. We have been having weekly Board of Health meetings.

from Miles Hutton to everyone:

We really have pretty decent communication between our office and the county health officer. We are kept in the loop.

from Miles Hutton to everyone:

yeah, it seems okay.

from PamC (privately):

I think this is good, keep this going.

How are counties that boarder a hot spot planning to reopen?
